

ADAM'S ANGUISH.

His Wife Packs Up Her Valise and Vamooses.

And Now He Says She Is Entirely Too Promiscuous.

The name of Adam Bender is familiar to readers of the Fort Wayne papers. Adam has had a new adventure with his better half. On Friday night, his wife from some unexplained cause, called her husband "an old b—h," a very inappropriate name. She further told him that she would under no circumstances live with him again, and then packed up her clothes, and also a part of Adam's, and pulled out for the residence of her daughter Mrs. Rayhouser, in Bloomingdale. All of this Adam is unable to explain, as he has supported his wife in royal style. At the same time, he says he is glad she has gone, as she was not the most faithful woman in the world, and Adam can give the names of at least a dozen men on Columbia street who have been guilty of indiscreet performances with Mrs. Bender. What Adam wants now is a divorce, and he has engaged attorneys to take such legal steps as will procure the necessary documents, and will also endeavor to have his faithless spouse arrested on a charge of adultery or some other similar charge. Adam distinctly and emphatically declares that he does not desire to set eyes on the partner of his life again.
